FRENCH auto maker Renault launched its first all-hatchback Pulse making its foray into the mass segment priced at between ₹5.77 lakh and ₹6.25 lakh (ex-showroom Delhi).

Pulse will be available with the Renault K9K diesel 1.5 dCi engine with maximum power of 64PS@4000rpm and peak torque of 160Nm@2000rpm and claims mileage of 23.08 km per litre.

"The Pulse, like the Fluence and the Koleos, is covered under the Renault Complete Care package, which offers 2+2 year/80,000 km warranty along with other benefits like concierge services, 24X7 roadside assistance and navigation assistance," the company said.

The firm also unveiled a crossover Duster, which would be launched before Diwali in the domestic market.

"India is a priority market for us. We are going ahead with our plans to launch five new products for the Indian market between the middle of 2011 and December this year," Marc Nassif, managing director, Renault India, said.

"Pulse is our third product for the Indian market and Duster will come before Diwali," he said.
